SUMMARY

I am a Full Stack Developer with experience designing and building scalable web and application solutions. I develop end-to-end applications, REST API integrations, database and cloud systems, and AI-powered tools that support real business operations. I also work on systems for manufacturing and business operations, helping improve work processes, reduce manual tasks, and increase overall productivity. In addition, I work with different teams to understand requirements and deliver practical solutions that support business growth and digital transformation.
